Report of Contributions from a Campaign Gathering

The financial agent MUST fill out a separate form for each campaign gathering—to record information about contributions made at that gathering. You need the information to complete the financial return.

Constituency: Rangituk	Candidate: Johnny Mike
Date of gathering (yyyy/mm/dd): Oct 25, 2013	Gathering location: out side Co-op Store

At a campaign gathering the financial agent or someone they appoint can collect financial contributions: anonymous and named contributions. The gathering may also provide goods and services contributions.

Anonymous contributions: MUST be $100 or less. Contributors do not give their name. On the campaign financial return the financial agent reports anonymous contributions from a gathering as a total for that gathering.

Named contributions: Each contributor gives their name and address. Each contributor that gives more than $100 MUST give their name and address. On the campaign financial return the financial agent reports each named contribution from a gathering the same way they report all other named contributions. Before the end of the post-election period the financial agent provides a tax receipt for each named contribution.

Goods and services: The gathering may have a sponsor that contributes goods and services. For example the sponsor may donate a room, pay for food and tea and coffee, or pay for music entertainment. Anything the sponsor donates or pays for, and does not get reimbursed, is a goods and services contribution. The financial agent records the sponsor's name and address, and the market value of their goods and services contribution. The financial agent does NOT give a tax receipt for any goods and services contribution. On the campaign financial return the financial agent reports goods and services contributions from a gathering the same way they report other goods and services contributions.

Named Contributions

Record each named contribution from the campaign gathering on the campaign financial return the same way you record all other named contributions.

Neighbouring communities contest new Aivilik seat

Johnny Ningeongan seeks re-election in rejigged Aivilik

PETER VARGA

Although his constituency has changed, Johnny Ningeongan says his priorities for re-election as a Nunavut MLA in the Kivalliq region have not.

Ningeongan's community of Coral Harbour and its neighbour, Repulse Bay, are now together in the same constituency, Aivilik, for the Oct. 28 territorial election.

This marks a return to a similar arrangement before 1999, under the Northwest Territories.

"We're quite familiar with being under the same umbrella," Ningeongan told Nunavut News, adding that both communities share similar goals and long-term projects.

The MLA, who won his seat for the constituency of Nauyasik in the 2008 election by just 32 votes, said he is taking nothing for granted in this election.

Ningeongan's only opponent is Repulse Bay's Steve Mapsalak. Mapsalak did not return calls for an interview for this story.

Like Ningeongan, Mapsalak has served as mayor of his community for several years, and one term as MLA for the neighbouring Akulliq constituency between 2004 and 2008.

The two communities are roughly equal in size, at about 900 residents each. Their high youth populations have made the need for new schools a priority.

"There's a new school pending for Repulse Bay for 2014-2015, and a preliminary design plan for a new school in Coral [Harbour]," Ningeongan said.

Both are included in a five-year plan by the territorial government, he said, "and I for one will be a strong advocate to make sure these things come through," he added.

Design plans for a new school for Coral Harbour, achieved during his mandate, has given Ningeongan "more assurance" that a new one can be built in the community over the next five years, he said.

On health care, the candidate has cited the need for a permanent mental health worker in Coral Harbour as priority.

"We've never had one before, and we always rely on personnel coming in from the government to assist in that regard," he said.

Asked about the need for a full-time physician in Coral Harbour, which the community lacks, Ningeongan said this has been an ongoing issue.

"We rely heavily on going either to Rankin Inlet or Winnipeg for check-ups and for any medical reason," he said, adding that this is typical of small communities throughout the territory.

The best MLAs can do to improve service in small communities, he said, is to expand patient relations at regional offices in Rankin Inlet and Iglood, and "advocate for better service" at larger health facilities in Winnipeg.

"This is where I believe regular MLAs and ministers can make a difference," he said.

Meanwhile, Ningeongan pointed to the creation of a patient-relations office in Iglood this year as "one area that will make a difference down the road."

Born and raised in Coral Harbour, Ningeongan, 67, worked for the hamlet of Coral Harbour as a secretary-manager and as a public works foreman before his first election to the municipal council in the 1990s.

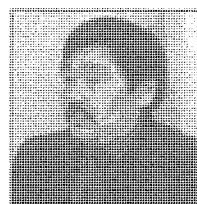

He served as hamlet mayor for 10 years, until 2007, and won the Nauyasik seat in the 2008 territorial election.

Ningeongan has served with several fruit organizations, including the Kivalliq Fruit Association and Nunavut Fruitgavik Inc., and said he prides himself as "an advocate for small communities."

He and his opponent Steve Mapsalak "have known each other for a number of years now, as mayors, and in other areas as well," Ningeongan said.

Johnny Ningeongan

Steve Mapsalak

"Communities have different priorities, and that is exactly what I'll have to hear out from the leadership as well as the ordinary folks in Repulse Bay."

MLA candidate gets full-time job, quits election race

Andrew Porter's name will stay on the ballot for Gjoa Haven

NUMATSIAQ NEWS

After landing a full-time job with the Qulliq Energy Corp., Gjoa Haven candidate Andrew Miquit Porter says he doesn't want to run for MLA anymore.

"I was running for MLA but then I got a job offer yesterday with Qulliq Energy so today I made up my mind to take the job and withdraw from the race for MLA..."

Porter said Oct. 10 on his Facebook timeline, which is open to the public.

Porter said he had just landed a job as an assistant plant operator with the QEC and wishes to withdraw from the election.

But on Oct. 28, and in advance votes, Gjoa Haven voters will still see Andrew Porter's name on the ballot.

That's because declared candidates who change their minds and want their names removed from the ballot must deliver a signed letter to the local returning officer no later than 31 days before election day, at 5 p.m.

That letter must be signed by two other voters in the constituency, who must take an oath.

Porter did not make his withdrawal decision until about 18 or 19 days prior to election day.

"If a candidate withdraws after the deadline, their name stays on the ballot — even if they send the RO a signed letter," the Elections Nunavut guide for candidates said.

Tony Akoak, Linda Humer and George Sonny Porter are also contesting the Gjoa Haven seat.

Why does the Government of Nunavut always seem to have insufficient funds available to municipalities, housing, social and health, economic developments, transportation and education? If I get elected to Pangnirtung MLA I will push and want the Nunavut Legislative Assembly to do a review on the current federal funding formula, funding strategies, guidelines and policies and to see how best to access more federal funds to the Nunavut Government and see if GN can get stable sufficient and adequate funds on an ongoing basis.
